The Commission Assistance and Mentoring Program (CAMP) helps local preservation commissions and architectural review boards succeed by providing high quality, intensive training for preservation commissioners, staff, elected officials and anyone involved with historic preservation.

Presented on October 17 and 18, this year's CAMP program in Lynchburg features three nationally recognized experts and focuses on preservation commission basics and beyond that every commission and board member should understand. The customized curriculum will include Legal Issues, Standards and Guidelines, New Materials, Hands on Design Exercise and Public Support.

All CAMP participants receive a large training and resource manual compiled from the most comprehensive, concise and up to date training information available. Registrants are expected to attend the entire workshop from beginning to end.
